- ◯ B. Each poem describes a family that owns a restaurant.
- ◯ C. Each speaker tells who they are and shows pride in their heritage.
- ◯ D. Each poem tells how a child learns to speak English at school.

Q10 RL.4.3

Why does José Miguel say he would rather have gotten soaked by the rain?

- ◯ A. Roger catches up with him and slaps his back, making sure it hurts.
- ◯ B. He wants to cool off after running all the way to school.
- ◯ C. His grandfather told him that walking in the rain is good for him.
- ◯ D. He hopes to be the first student to reach Mr. Tate in the yard.

Q11 RL.4.3

What does Mr. Tate keep saying to José Miguel?

- ◯ A. That he should stop speaking Spanish with his friends.
- ◯ B. That he should tell Roger to stop teasing him every day.
- ◯ C. That he should go and eat lunch at Miguel's Tacos.
- ◯ D. That he could blend in if they called him Joe or Mike.

Q12 RL.4.3

Who was José Miguel named after?

- ◯ A. Don Miguel de Cervantes, a name he asks Mr. Tate about.
- ◯ B. His grandfather, José Miguel Martínez, who never wrote a word.
- ◯ C. Miguel Hernández, a name he tells Mr. Tate to Google.
- ◯ D. His father, who gives him advice before he leaves for school.

Q13 RL.4.3

How did Lili and Michiko become best friends?

- ◯ A. They were neighbors who grew up together on the same street in Peru.
- ◯ B. Their grandparents all came from the same country in Asia.
- ◯ C. They were both new in school and placed in a Spanish bilingual class.
- ◯ D. They met at a language club where they both studied Japanese.

Q14 RL.4.5

Before each poem, a box such as "My Name Is Lili" tells where the speaker's family comes from and where the speaker lives. How does this help the reader?

- ◯ A. It tells the reader how each poem is going to end.
- ◯ B. It helps the reader compare the speakers' heritages.
- ◯ C. It lists the Spanish words the reader must learn first.
- ◯ D. It shows the order in which the authors wrote the poems.

Q15 RL.4.6

Each poem is told by a speaker who uses the words "I" and "my." How does this first-person point of view affect the poems?

- ◯ A. It shares each child's own feelings in their own words.
- ◯ B. It makes the poems sound like a news report about a city.
- ◯ C. It hides how the speakers feel about their own names.
- ◯ D. It lets Roger and Mr. Tate tell their side of the story.

Q16 RL.4.2 TRAP

Selection 3 · The Year of the Rat

REALISTIC FICTION · GRACE LIN / QU LAN · 8 QUESTIONS

Q17 RL.4.2

What is "The Year of the Rat" mostly about?

- ◯ A. How Pacy and her friend Melody spend Chinese New Year together.
- ◯ B. A girl who is angry that a new boy moved into her friend's old house.
- ◯ C. A family that moves across the country to California.
- ◯ D. A girl named Pacy who learns to be brave and to decide who she is and what she wants to become.

Q18 RL.4.3

What dream does Pacy have for her future?

- A. To become a famous athlete.
- B. To become a doctor like her father.
- C. To become an author and illustrator.
- D. To move back to California with Melody.

Q19 RL.4.3

What does Dad tell Pacy about deciding who she is?

- A. That no one can tell her — only she can decide, because only she knows who she is.
- B. That her teacher should decide for her.
- C. That she is too young to decide anything.
- D. That she should wait until she is grown up.

Q20 RL.4.3

How does Pacy stand up for Dun-Wei at school?

- A. She writes a note to the principal about him.
- B. She tells the others it is not nice to call him "Dumb-Way," because his name is Dun-Wei.
- C. She invites him to her house for dinner.
- D. She moves to a different desk to sit near him.

Q21 RL.4.6

The story is told by Pacy using the word "I." How does this first-person point of view help the reader?

- A. It keeps Pacy's feelings hidden from the reader.
- B. It tells the story from Dad's point of view instead.
- C. It makes the reader believe the story is a folktale.
- D. It lets the reader hear Pacy's private doubts and her growing courage from the inside.

Q22 RL.4.5

Dad tells Pacy the story "Knowing the Fish" inside the main story. What is this kind of story-within-a-story called, and why is it included?

- A. An embedded story; it teaches Pacy a lesson that fits her own situation.
- B. A title page; it names the book.
- C. A glossary; it lists hard words.
- D. An index; it shows where to find facts.

Q23 RL.4.3

By the end, how has Pacy changed?

- ◯ A. She decides to give up her dream for good.
- ◯ B. She feels brave, "like a tiger," and trusts that she can decide her own future.
- ◯ C. She moves away to be with her best friend.
- ◯ D. She decides she no longer wants any friends.

Q24 RL.4.2 TRAP

What is the MAIN message, or theme, of "The Year of the Rat"?

- ◯ A. Pacy's best friend Melody moved away to California.
- ◯ B. Pacy was born in the Year of the Tiger.
- ◯ C. Only you can decide who you are, and you can be brave enough to change the things you do not like.
- ◯ D. Dun-Wei's family moved into Melody's old house.

Selection 4 · Kitoto the Mighty

FOLKTALE · TOLOLWA M. MOLLEL / KRISTI FROST · 8 QUESTIONS

Q25 RL.4.2

What is "Kitoto the Mighty" mostly about?

- ◯ A. How a hawk hunts the animals of the Savannah.
- ◯ B. How the wind, sun, and river decide who is strongest.
- ◯ C. A small mouse who looks for the most powerful being to protect him and learns the truth about power.
- ◯ D. How a mouse named Kigego carved a mountain with her teeth.

Q26 RL.4.3

Why does Kitoto go searching for the most powerful being?

- ◯ A. He wants to become the ruler of the Savannah.
- ◯ B. He is looking for food to store for the winter.
- ◯ C. He is trying to find his way back home.
- ◯ D. He wants a powerful friend to protect him from the hawk that nearly caught him.

Q27 RL.4.3

In what order does Kitoto ask the beings about who is most powerful?

- ◯ A. The mountain, then the wind, then the sun, then the river.
- ◯ B. The river, then the sun, then the wind, then the mountain.
- ◯ C. The hawk, then the river, then the mountain, then the sun.
- ◯ D. The wind, then the sun, then the river, then the mountain.

Q28 RL.4.3

Who turns out to be the "most powerful being" the mountain points Kitoto to?

- ◯ A. Kigego, a mountain mouse who carved the tunnels with her own teeth.
- ◯ B. The hawk that hunts in the sky.
- ◯ C. The sun that lights the Savannah.
- ◯ D. A giant beast no one has ever seen.

Q29 RL.4.3

What does Kitoto learn from meeting Kigego?

- ◯ A. That the hawk is the strongest creature of all.
- ◯ B. That even a small mouse can be mighty through hard work, just as Kigego carved a whole mountain.
- ◯ C. That he should never leave his bush again.
- ◯ D. That the mountain is alive and can speak.

Q30 RL.4.6

Each time Kitoto meets a new being, he gives himself a grander title — "the Mighty," then "the Great," then "the Magnificent." What does this repeated pattern show about Kitoto?

- ◯ A. That he has truly become a king.
- ◯ B. That he has many different names.
- ◯ C. That he is a small mouse trying to seem braver and more important than he feels.
- ◯ D. That he forgets who he is.

Q31 RL.4.5

Kitoto repeats almost the same question to the river, the sun, the wind, and the mountain. How does this repeated pattern help the folktale?

- ◯ A. It makes the folktale sound like a funny song.
- ◯ B. It explains the rules for a game the animals play.
- ◯ C. It shows that each being is angry at the next one.
- ◯ D. It builds the journey step by step and leads the reader to the surprise that the smallest creature is mighty.

Q32 RL.4.2 TRAP

What is the MAIN message, or theme, of "Kitoto the Mighty"?

- ◯ A. Size does not decide power; even the smallest creature can be mighty through hard work and courage.
- ◯ B. A hawk circled high above the Savannah.
- ◯ C. The wind swung Kitoto to a distant mountain peak.
- ◯ D. Kigego built all her tunnels with her own teeth.

Q1 Causation DOK 3

In "Flora & Ulysses," one experience CHANGES everything. Show what the squirrel was like BEFORE, what HAPPENED to it, and what it became AFTER.

BEFORE → EVENT → AFTER · FLORA & ULYSSES

THE SQUIRREL BEFORE	WHAT HAPPENED	THE SQUIRREL AFTER

How does this one experience also begin to change Flora, the "natural-born cynic"? Explain.

Q2 Responsibility DOK 3

In "Yes! We Are Latinos," three young people speak about their HERITAGE. Trace THREE speakers: where their family comes from, what they say or do, and how they feel.

THREE SPEAKERS · YES! WE ARE LATINOS

SPEAKER 1 · JOSÉ MIGUEL

how does he answer Mr. Tate?

SPEAKER 2 · LILI

what is she tired of explaining?

SPEAKER 3 · MICHIKO

what makes her feel proud?

How does choosing to keep your name and heritage help shape who you are? Explain.

Q3 Reflection DOK 3

In "The Year of the Rat," Pacy reflects on a hard question about her IDENTITY. Show her doubt at the START, what Dad teaches her, and how she changes by the END.

A CHANGE IN IDENTITY · THE YEAR OF THE RAT

PACY AT THE START	PACY BY THE END

Dad says only Pacy can decide who she is. Why does deciding for yourself matter when you are shaping your own identity?

Q4 Perspective DOK 3

Two characters in this module learn that POWER and SIZE are not the same. Compare HOW "Kitoto the Mighty" and "The Year of the Rat" each show a small or unsure character discovering real strength.

DISCOVERING REAL STRENGTH

KITOTO · THE TINY MOUSE	PACY · THE UNSURE GIRL

What do both stories show about where real strength or power comes from? (Hint: not size or luck.)

Passage 1 · The New Boy's First Goal

Diego was the new boy at school, and he was sure he was no good at soccer. On his old team he had spent every game sitting on the bench. When his class went outside to play, his stomach felt tight. He stood at the edge of the field and hoped the ball would never come near him. But one boy named Theo waved him over. "Stand here," Theo said, pointing to an open spot. "I will pass to you." Diego shook his head. He was certain he would miss. Still, when the ball rolled toward him, he kicked as hard as he could. To his shock, the ball flew straight into the net. His new classmates cheered and slapped him on the back. Diego could not stop smiling. He had always believed he was a bad player. Now he wondered if maybe he had only needed someone to believe in him first. That one goal did not make him a star, but it changed the way he saw himself.

170 WORDS · LEXILE 500–560L · RIT 200–206

Q1 RIT 200 | Lexile 500L | Key Detail

How did Diego feel about soccer at the start of the passage?

Passage 2 · Maria's Garden

Maria wanted to be good at something right away. When she tried the piano, she quit after a week because her fingers stumbled. When she tried painting, she gave up because her trees looked like green blobs. She believed that if she was not great at first, she never would be. Then her grandmother handed her a packet of seeds. "A garden teaches you who you are," Abuela said. Maria planted the seeds and watered them every morning. For many days nothing happened, and she almost stopped. But her grandmother told her that growing takes patience, and patience can be learned. Slowly, tiny green shoots pushed up through the soil. Maria was amazed. She had made these plants grow with her own steady care. As the weeks passed, she watched her garden bloom into bright rows of flowers and vegetables. Maria realized she was not a quitter after all. She had simply never given herself enough time. The garden had shown her that she could be patient, and that changed how she thought about everything she tried.

Passage 3 · The Drum That Found Its Beat

In a small village, a boy named Kofi longed to join the drumming circle. Every evening the older players gathered under the great tree and filled the night with rhythm. Kofi practiced in secret, but whenever he tried to copy the others exactly, his drumming sounded stiff and wrong. He grew discouraged and nearly hid his drum away for good. One night, an old drummer named Yaw noticed him. "You keep trying to sound like everyone else," Yaw said. "But a drummer must find his own beat." Kofi did not understand at first. The next evening, instead of copying, he closed his eyes and played the rhythm he felt inside — the beat of his own heart, the patter of rain he loved, the steps of his little sister dancing. The sound was different from the others, yet it fit perfectly, weaving through their rhythm like a new color. The circle smiled and welcomed him in. Kofi learned that he did not become a real drummer by imitating others. He found himself by daring to play the music that was truly his own.

Passage 4 · Sam and the Science Fair

Sam had always thought of himself as a winner. He won spelling bees, races, and board games, and he expected to win the school science fair too. He built a model volcano, certain it would earn first place. But when the judges came by, his volcano barely bubbled, while a quiet girl named Priya won with a clever project on how plants drink water. At first Sam was crushed. He had never lost at anything important, and he did not know who he was if he was not a winner. For a few days he sulked. Then he noticed Priya carefully watering her plants after school, day after day, taking notes in a worn little book. Sam realized she had not won by luck. She had won through curiosity and steady work. Slowly, Sam began to ask Priya questions, and the two became friends and lab partners. He discovered that losing had taught him something winning never had: that he loved learning for its own sake, not just for the prize. The boy who once needed to win was becoming someone who simply wanted to understand.
