- B. a person who sells tickets at the front door
- C. a person whose job is to look after and choose a museum's artworks
- D. a person who guides visitors on tours through a museum

Q2 RI.4.4

Kira studies an old photo of the Brooklyn Bridge. She says that, based on the angle of the photo, it was maybe taken on the dock.

What does angle mean here?

- A. the direction or position from which you look at something
- B. the place where an old photo is kept
- C. the color of the sky in a picture
- D. the distance between you and the thing you look at

Q3 RI.4.4

Kira thinks about where the photographer stood. Based on the angle of the photo, she says it was maybe taken on the dock.

What does dock mean here?

- A. a sail that catches the wind
- B. a small boat that carries people across a river
- C. a road that winds through a forest
- D. a platform along the water where boats stop and tie up

Q4 RI.4.4

Boats are still on the river even though the bridge was built. Kira says that one wouldn't be the main transportation, or vice versa.

What does vice versa mean here?

- A. in the very same order, one after the other
- B. by boat across a wide river
- C. with the order switched, so the opposite is also true
- D. at the very end of a long day

Q5 RI.4.4

Jeff points to the bridge's tall towers. He says the piers hold the cables, and the cables hold the bridge.

What does piers mean here?

- A. flat roads that cars drive across on a bridge
- B. big posts or towers that hold up a bridge
- C. sweet treats baked in a crust
- D. boats that sail under a bridge

Q6 RI.4.4

Jeff explains how the bridge stays up. The piers hold the cables, and the cables hold the bridge.

What does cables mean here?

- A. paths that people walk across
- B. thin threads used for sewing cloth
- C. thick, strong ropes made of twisted metal strands
- D. warm blankets for cold nights

Q7 RI.4.4

Jeff looks closely at the old photo. He says the piers and cables are like framing the river, the boats, and the sailboats.

What does framing mean here?

- A. to cover something up so it cannot be seen
- B. to go around the edges of something like a border around a picture
- C. to paint a picture very quickly
- D. to hold up a long, heavy bridge

Q8 RI.4.4

Jeff shows Kira a second photo of the bridge. It was made by an artist named Berenice Abbott in 1937.

What does artist mean here?

- A. a person who makes paintings, photos, or other works of art
- B. a person who buys art to hang at home
- C. a person who builds bridges over rivers
- D. a person who fixes broken cars

Q9 RI.4.4

Berenice Abbott worked on a big plan. She was working on a project of photographing old and new New York.

What does project mean here?

- A. a song sung at a birthday party
- B. a single photo of a famous bridge
- C. a big job or plan of work that you carry out step by step over time
- D. a short quiz given at the end of a lesson

Q10 RI.4.4

Abbott photographed old and new New York. She was trying to use the camera to record things as they are.

What does record mean here?

- A. to sing a song very loudly
- B. to make a city look newer than it is
- C. to remember something in your head without writing it down
- D. to save information or pictures so they can be seen again later

Q11 RI.4.4

Kira looks at Abbott's simple photo. She feels she could walk up and participate in this scene.

What does scene mean here?

- A. a loud noise heard in the night
- B. a place and everything happening there, seen at one moment
- C. a map that shows where all the streets are
- D. a camera used to take old photos

Q12 RI.4.4

Kira notices how plain Abbott's photo is. She says Abbott was not putting extra details or more props in it.

What does props mean here?

- A. clouds drifting in a stormy sky
- B. items set out in a show or photo to help it look real or interesting
- C. crowds walking on a city street
- D. actors who perform in a play or show

Q13 RI.4.4

Jeff compares the two photos of the bridge. He says the stuff in the foreground is changing.

What does foreground mean here?

- A. the name written under a picture
- B. the top part of a picture, where the sky is
- C. the area in a picture that seems nearest to the person looking at it
- D. the bridge that stays the same over the years

Q14 RI.4.4

Jeff says the things in front change over time. But in the background, the bridge isn't changing.

What does background mean here?

- A. the area in a picture behind the main person or thing
- B. the busy street in front of the bridge
- C. the price tag stuck on a picture
- D. the person or thing a picture is mostly about

Q15 RI.4.4

Kira thinks about what stays the same in Abbott's photo. She says the bridge would still be a reminder.

What does reminder mean here?

- A. something that brings back thoughts of a person, place, or time
- B. something that shows what will happen in the future
- C. something that shows how a city has changed
- D. something you eat as a quick snack
